

HERO CASTO AGAIN FACES DEATH AND GOES TO CHEROKEE

Great Crowd Cheers as in Small Yacht Jersey Captain Reaches Stranded Steamer and Brings Second Mate Ashore.

(Special to The Evening World.)

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 15.—While the entire city is ringing with the praises of Capt. Mark Casto and his crew of daring seamen who braved death in the rescue of the passengers of the Cherokee yesterday, the fearless mariner has again dared the sea, this time in the sloop Sinbad.

The little Abbie, sharing with Capt. Casto and his men the glory of yesterday's achievement, is out of commission to-day. Planking had carried the overboard through the breakers yesterday were found to be badly sprung this morning, and water has risen in her hold until the engines are useless. A crowd watched the journey of the Sinbad to the Cherokee and the return trip made shortly after noon.

The little ship beside the baggage of the passengers, brought on yesterday, Capt. Casto brought Second Mata Connor, who left the ship only because of the urgency of a call from the officers of the Cherokee to report cases of sickness which will probably end in the total destruction of the steamer and most of her cargo.

Capt. Casto and his men expressed the opinion that the Cherokee may yet weather the seas and hold together until she could be lightened and driven into deep water.

Honor to a Hero.

A purse that will probably reach several thousand dollars, a medal and the official thanks of Mayor Sloy and officials of the city will be tendered to Capt. Casto in recognition of his bravery with the breakers of yesterday.

Mayor Sloy has already taken steps toward publicly thanking the brave man and his crew and the City Council will be asked to have a medal struck for each man who went out with him to save the lives of the passengers.

Capt. Archibald, the two mates and ship's carmen are still on board. With them are a dozen members of the Maritime Life-Saving crew.

Praised by Mayor.

"My father—the man who has shaved me for years—lost his wife and three children on the Slocum, and I don't think I would make a good hero," said James H. Stank of No. 55 Broadway.

The city should feel proud of men who would risk what looked like certain death to save lives, and the city will take proper measures to show the appreciation of the unparalleled bravery.

I myself shall thank Capt. Casto personally.

Charles H. Phelps, an agent of No. 1 Broadway, survived the calamity, and attorneys were congratulating each other when the third survivor, Frederick Hanmer, retired of No. 140 Madison Avenue, declared he had changed his mind.

A great sympathy for the defendant has come over me," Mr. Hannaford said, and he was seconded. Alfred Harris, of No. 33 West Eighty-fifth street, was最受欢迎ly challenged by the defense and excused.

Macdonald Mackay, a lace importer of Macdonald & Co., and his wife, Mrs. Mackay, and their two sons, John and Howells, an architect of No. 109 Fifth Avenue, were called.

"I am very much prejudiced," said Mrs. Mackay.

When he was excused by Walker over and shock hands with a handsome young man who had been surrounded as an witness. The Court called the young woman blushing, and Mr. Newell made a quick whisper.

Henry C. Neuland, of No. 50 West Seventy-first street, was also excused. The material was sent scurrying for more telegrams and court adjourned for lunch.

Two hours afternoons session opened when the afternoon session was seated in the court room. They had been summoned from the street by Marshal Howell.

The trial was opened by the special prosecutor, Gen. Thomas, who had any excuse for not sitting now because of the opportunity to observe the defense.

"I am a very nice person," said Gen. Chaffee.

Gen. Chaffee does not go on the record list until Feb. 1, but he deserved to relinquish the duties of Chief of Staff when he might have a fifteen-day leave of absence before returning from active service. Gen. Bates, now Assistant Chief of Staff, will succeed him as Chief of Staff.
